> Sean O'Hayre, CEO & President of Summit Access & Security

Gianini brings more than 25 years of expertise in physical security. He began his career in the late 1990s as a field technician and advanced through leadership and regional management roles. Most recently, he spent eight years as a Regional Service Manager, leading field service teams, managing key customer relationships and ensuring customers consistently received the level of service they expect.

Over the course of his career, Gianini has developed deep expertise in electronic security, field service operations and team development. He believes strong leadership starts with communication, accountability and support, principles he brings to every team he builds.

"We are thrilled to welcome Gianini to the Summit team," said Sean O'Hayre, CEO & President of Summit Access & Security. "His career path, from field technician to regional leader, gives him a rare, ground-level understanding of what our customers need and what our employees need to succeed. Gianini's commitment to communication, accountability and support aligns perfectly with our values, and we are confident he will be a tremendous asset to our Mid-Atlantic customers and teams."

"I'm excited to join Summit Access & Security and to lead our Mid-Atlantic team," said Gianini Spirache, District Manager, Mid-Atlantic Region. "I take pride in developing practical solutions that work for both customers and employees. My goal is to build strong, supported teams that deliver consistently outstanding service, deepen the relationships we have with our customers and help Summit continue to grow across the region."
